Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

AUTUMN? It's on the way. The sky to the northward was nearly blotted out about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon when what looked to be a fleet of about a thousand wild ducks streamed over Hope. They looked like ducks, and they seemed to be flying low—but they were not ducks, and they were flying high.

A Tense Moment for U. S. as House Elected President

It Has Happened Only Twice in American History—in 1801 and 1825

JEFFERSON, FIRST
He Was Elected Over Burr—But in 1825 Jackson Lost to Adams

Representative William Lemke, Union party presidential candidate, and Father Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, have predicted that an electoral college deadlock will throw the choice of President and vice president into congress.

The constitution provides that the house shall choose the President and the senate the vice president if candidates fail to receive a clear majority of electoral votes.

This is the first of two articles discussing presidential elections decided by such means.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Tumultuous scenes have marked the two occasions in American political history when the election of a President has been thrown into the house of representatives.

Charged by the constitution with choosing the chief executive when a presidential candidate fails to receive a clear majority of electoral votes, the house performed this task in both 1801 and 1825.

The senate chose the vice president for the only time in American history after the election of 1836.

In the election of 1800, Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr received 73 electoral votes each, thus leaving it to the house to say which should be President.

February 11, 1801, was the date set for making the choice.

'Assassination Threats'

Feeling ran high in Washington on the eve of the balloting.

"For several days previous," reports the New York Daily Advertiser, "men of the most abandoned and profligate character flocked to the city and it is the opinion of every sensible man here violent measures would have been resorted to to thrust Mr. Jefferson into the chair."

Another newspaper reported that letters were being written to the supporters of Burr in the house "threatening them with assassination."

With all but two members present and one of these two lying ill in a committee room adjoining the chamber, the house started balloting. Thirty-five ballots were taken during the next six days without a choice being made. On the 36th ballot, February

They were cranes, according to a local sportsman—a variety known as "gourd-heads" in these parts.

The crane is a long-necked gentleman with long legs and a long bill. He's a fisherman—and about this time every year he pauses in his southward migration to take a squint at the fish in the local lakes.

The crane, "gourd-head," or what-have-you, is a very big gentleman, and since there were so many of him up there Monday it seemed to be a fleet of small ducks flying low. But it wasn't. It was a lot of big cranes flying fairly high—800 feet or so.

It would have made a swell picture—but while we were arguing whether they were ducks or cranes the fleet of cranes passed over, a deluge of rain menaced the camera—and so there won't be any picture.

We'll wait for the ducks. They'll be along.

For autumn's on the way.

Liquor Contest Is Again Postponed

Postponement Is Sixth—New Date of Hearing Is October 5

The Hempstead county liquor election contest suit was postponed in county court Tuesday for the sixth time.

Postponement was caused by the absence of Circuit Judge Dexter Bush who was scheduled to sit in at the hearing to advise County Judge H. M. Stephens on legal points.

New date of the hearing has been set for the first Monday in October.

The county voted to retain the Thorn liquor law by a majority of nine votes. The election was contested by N. P. O'Neal and 11 other Hempstead county citizens, alleging unfair voting practices in 12 of the county's 36 precincts and challenging more than 100 votes. Two of the 12 later petitioned to be allowed to withdraw from the petition.

Columbia County Centennial Oct. 1

Series of Programs to Be Held at Magnolia October 1-2-3

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—Columbia county will celebrate the 100th birthday of the State of Arkansas, October 1, 2 and 3, with a series of programs that will be well worth attending. This is Columbia county's part of the State Centennial celebration.

The first day's program will honor Harvey Couch, a native of Columbia county and state centennial chairman, and will consist of a parade in the forenoon, containing the Queen's float, followed with a brief program at the reviewing stand on the public square.

In the afternoon a more lengthy program, featuring an address by a prominent national character, will be the order of the day. In the evening a pageant, directed, cast, and written by Doris Dickinson of the Magnolia A. & M. college faculty, will be given in the Greek theater at the college. This will be one of the very best productions of its kind ever attempted in the state.

The second day will be given over to the Farm Bureau, which will have an agricultural program in both the forenoon and afternoon. Sultana's Magnolia Belle, the Jersey cow owned by college, which is making a record in butter fat production second to none in the United States this year, will be exhibited as a part of this day's activities.

In the evening of this, the second day, there will be a second performance of the pageant in the Greek theater early in the evening, followed by a football game in the new stadium.

The third day will be under the direction of the Boy Scouts of America, and will be a day full of interesting, entertaining, and educational activities.

The Columbia county Centennial Committee invites everyone to come, bring a basket of luncheon, and spend every day of the celebration; if not every day, one day, at least.

Ice Causes Wreck

AUSTIN, Texas.—(AP)—Ice was blamed for one Texas automobile accident during the hot weather. A report to the state highway commission was that a driver, holding his feet on a chunk of ice to keep them cool, was unable to move his foot over on the brake in time to stop his car before crashing into another.

Total of $133 Is Raised for County Agents' Fund Here

Hatley White Makes First Report in Campaign to Raise $965

MUST REACH GOAL

Otherwise County Faces Loss of Farm and Demonstration Offices

Hatley White, treasurer of the drive to raise $965 to retain Hempstead county's two agricultural agents, reported Tuesday that the first tabulation of funds totaled $133.

Committees are canvassing each of the 12 townships in the county in an effort to raise the required amount under threat of having the two agents' offices closed October 1.

Mr. White said that any person wishing to donate to this fund may do so by bringing or mailing him a check or money order.

Stamps Injunction Ordered Dissolved

Magnolia Chancellor Upholds Highway Department on Routing

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—(AP)—Chancellor Walker Smith sustained Tuesday a State Highway Department motion to dissolve an injunction granting property owners to prevent re-routing of U. S. highway No. 82 through the outskirts of Stamps.

He held that a circuit court order of condemnation of property for right-of-way for the highway was not subject to attack in chancery court. Judge Smith said property owners had an adequate remedy in circuit court.

Hitler to Resign, Rumor in Germany

Goering May Succeed Him, Nation Hears During War Maneuvers

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Nazi Germany's martial preparedness was polished to glossy perfection on all fronts Tuesday.

Autumn maneuvers, the greatest since pre-war days, saw the first large-scale demonstration of the army air force, in co-operation with new artillery units and tanks.

Secret orders had been received by millions of Germans between the ages of 25 and 45 telling them when and where they must report in the event of war.

A report was circulated widely that Adolf Hitler may resign as chancellor and retain the simple title of der fuhrer (the leader).

The report mentioned General Goering as his possible successor.

Rebels Within 40 Miles of Madrid

Maqueda Falls, and Roads to Capital and Toledo Are Open

By the Associated Press

Spanish government troops dug in for a desperate counter-offensive Tuesday night miles behind Maqueda, key town on the highway to Madrid as the insurgents' army drove steadily toward the capital.

The government stand, reported to be at Santa Cruz del Retamb, would put the onrushing insurgents less than 40 miles from Madrid.

Fugitives from Madrid who crossed the French border said the capital was on war-edge.

The capture of Maqueda, opening direct roads to Madrid and Toledo, was announced officially Tuesday by the Burgos provincial government.

Copyright Associated Press

TALAVERA DE LA REINA, Spain. (By Courier to France)—Four columns of Fascist troops Monday night drove nearer and nearer Maqueda, strategic highway juncture only 45 miles south of Madrid.

The fall of Maqueda was predicted by the insurgent high command any day, with the government defenders reported routed all along the line.

With tanks and airplanes, the forces of Gen. Francisco Franco brushed aside the resistance of government reinforcements brought up to rally their scattered battle line.

Fields and roadways were littered with the bodies of government dead as the Fascist advance clicked so fast that at times neither artillery units nor staff officers could keep up with them.

Overhead, the government warplanes sought to cut off the rebel advance from the rear.

TOLEDO, Spain.—Government military leaders Monday night rested their men for a final assault to drive out or kill the besieged Fascists who have held out in the ancient Alcazar during 82 days of shot, shell and dynamite.

Their forces wearied to the point of exhaustion by three days of incessant fighting, the government leaders delayed their planned dawn attack.

The government militiamen sprawled on floors in exhaustion—but there was no rest for the men, women and children still alive in the Alcazar.

There were 1,700 who first took refuge in the ancient fortress. How many still live after the bombardments and explosion of two tons of dynamite no one knew.

The women and children, it was believed were herded into the dark underground dungeons beneath the fortress.

Only one thing appeared certain—the male defenders still alive within the citadel would die rather than surrender and be executed as the government assured them they would be.

Their machine guns hot from almost steady firing during the last three days, the garrison's defenders tonight were subjected to another artillery bombardment.

New gasoline fires were started in various parts of the Alcazar by groups of government militiamen still on duty.

The insurgent machine gun nests were picked off one by one by a government field piece set up in the basement of a hospital.

Sniping rattled continually during the night as mechanics worked to repair the tank which had played an important part in the government's attack on the fortress Friday.

Swanke Begins 5th Year as Manager of Saenger House

Theater Also Celebrating Ninth Anniversary of Its Opening

EVENT WEDNESDAY

Swanke Gets a Telegram From Jane Withers, Noted Child Star

A double celebration is planned Wednesday at Saenger theater in observance of the local theater's ninth anniversary and, incidentally, the starting of Arthur Swanke's fifth consecutive year as manager.

On the eve of the celebration congratulatory messages and telegrams were pouring in at the theater office. One of the telegrams was from Jane Withers, kid movie star, who Swanke declares is "tops" among the modern child stars.

For real talent, "Jane has got it over Shirley Temple," Manager Swanke says, "but for pulling power at the box office Shirley can bring in more customers."

A hand-picked program has been arranged for the "birthday party" at the Saenger Wednesday night, featuring Jane Withers in "Pepper," a Popeye cartoon, Paramount pictorial, a Bert Lahr comedy in "Boy, Oh Boy."

On Milwaukee Journal

Swanke's career as a theatrical manager is long and interesting. It started 16 years ago. After leaving the Milwaukee Journal he came South to join the advertising staff of the Fort Worth Press.

It was there that Pierre Levy, a well-known Texas showman, talked Swanke out of the newspaper business and into the show world.

It was shortly afterward that Levy tipped Swanke to his first venture into the show game. Le B. Clark of El Dorado, Ark., was in need of an advertising man.

Swanke hopped to the telephone and after a very few minutes talk convinced Clark that he, Swanke, "was the greatest exploitation man that ever came South."

Swanke got the job.

After two years with Clark he joined up with William Smith at Tulsa, only to return to Clark at El Dorado six months later. From El Dorado he accepted a Saenger offer, going first to Jackson, Miss., and later to Baton Rouge, La.

From there it was a hop, skip and jump, first to Stuttgart where he joined Arkansas Amusement company, now known as Malco, the present company by which he is employed.

From Stuttgart he again went to Tulsa, and from there to the Public organization. His first assignment was Des Moines. Winter coming on, and, having had his first real taste of Dixie, he asked to be transferred South.

He was sent to Anderson, S. C., arriving in time to help install the first talking picture equipment there.

After a year and a half he was transferred to the advertising department of Public at Dallas, and shortly afterward went to El Paso, where he remained for a year. Leaving El Paso he joined Fox Pictures at Beloit, Wis.

Again the cold weather came on. He wired his old friend M. S. McCord, at Little Rock, that he wanted to come South where it was warm.

McCord, in return, "reported" to Helena that he was in need of a manager.

Needless to say, Swanke did.

From Helena he was sent to Pine Bluff, then back to Helena only to come to Hope four months later where he has been the last four years.

The above, in summarized form, amounts to seven states and 15 cities.

Is Ninth Manager

Swanke is the last of the many managers who have had charge of the Saenger here since its opening nine years ago this Wednesday. Guy B. Snow, now with Malco at Newport, was the first local manager. He was followed by Robert Norman, Jack Eaves, Matt Press, Howard Schuster, Elmer Hecht, Elliott Johnson, Erian Clapp.

Swanke has been maintained as manager for a longer period than any of his predecessors, and has been the only man to put the theater on a paying basis, despite the fact that he came here during the depression. Only last week he announced that the Saenger would resume daily matinees for the first time since 1931.

Improving business conditions justified the expansion of the theater's program and the attendance to date has been pleasing. It was less than a year ago that Malco purchased the Saenger property from J. P. Brundidge.

Asking Swanke to picture he thought was the best since the advent of sound, he thought it was a toss up as far as he was personally concerned between "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Death Takes a Holiday."

His favorite movie star is Lionel Barrymore, and Kay Francis is "tops" among the actresses. Jane Withers and Spanky McFarland are his favorite youngsters.

W. R. Hamilton Is 1st Baptist Pastor

Tennesseean Accepts Call Here, and Will Preach This Sunday

The Rev. William R. Hamilton of Louisville, Ky., has accepted the pastorate of First Baptist church and will preach his first sermon here Sunday as regular pastor.

He succeeds the Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, who resigned in June of this year to go to Vicksburg, Miss., as pastor of the First Baptist church there.

The Rev. Mr. Hamilton is a native of Tennessee and a graduate of the University of Tennessee and the Louisville Seminary. He has served churches in Florida and Indiana.

The Rev. Mr. Hamilton preached to the Baptist congregation here twice this summer, later being chosen by the church as its regular pastor.

He is 37 years old, married and has a small child. Mrs. Hamilton will not accompany her husband here immediately but will arrive within the next two or three weeks.

Dinner will be served for 50 cents a plate. Ruel Oliver's orchestra will play.

Roosevelt Names Education Group

Chicagoan Heads Committee to Study U. S. Vocational Aid

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt named Tuesday a committee of 18, headed by Dr. Floyd Reeves, of the University of Chicago to study the need for "an expanded program" of federal aid for vocational education.

The study is the outgrowth of passage by the last congress of a bill authorizing an increase over the next few years of more than 10 million dollars in federal contributions to the states for vocational education.

The act will become operative next July 1, but congress must appropriate additional funds first.

ASSEMBLY TO ACT

Fear Mussolini Will Withdraw, But Small Nations Are Determined

GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—Bewildered League of Nations statesmen, impressed by a small-power revolt against the erasure of lost Ethiopia, decided Tuesday to ask the World Court of Justice to proclaim whether Haile Selassie's former kingdom is now Italian.

The agreement to take this historic step was made unanimously by the credentials committee of the League assembly.

The recommendations must be approved by the assembly itself.

League officials expressed fear that Mussolini might resign from Geneva.

Rumor Cazort to Get Utilities Post

Guy Williams, Brooks Hays Also Mentioned by Memphis C-A

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—The Commercial Appeal said Tuesday in a dispatch from Little Rock that Lieutenant Governor Lee Cazort "will likely" be named chairman of the State Utilities Commission by Carl Bailey, Democratic nominee for governor.

"It is also reported that Guy Williams, assistant attorney general, is slated for a post with the corporation commission, and that Brooks Hays, Democratic national committeeman, is slated for a similar post," the paper said.

District Attorney May Probe State

Donham Calls for Copy of Report on State Capital Expense

LITTLE ROCK.—As the state comptroller's office prepared Monday to continue investigation of what State Comptroller Roy W. Spence said in a preliminary audit of capital maintenance expenses was excessive purchases of sanitary supplies, Prosecution Attorney Fred A. Donham requested Governor Futrell and the comptroller to furnish him a copy of the report filed with the governor Saturday.

Accountants in the comptroller's office have been assigned to investigate the source, method of purchase and delivery of approximately $16,000 worth of soap and janitor supplies, which Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald said he did not order and does not intend to pay for.

Three Little Rock firms are said to have handled the orders for Memphis firms on a 10 per cent jobbers' commission basis. The local firms paid the out-of-state firm or firms the invoice price of the supplies, less 10 per cent commission, and expected to collect the money from the secretary of state.

One of the concerns the Economy Wholesale Grocery Company, announced Sunday, through Roy P. Rand, an official of the company, that it considered the transaction legitimate and that it expected to collect $3,300 which Mr. Rand said it due it.

Other firms involved in the transaction have not indicated what their attitude will be. One of them is said to have paid $10,000 to Memphis firms and the other about $2,800.

The comptroller's office will include in its investigation a comparison of prices paid by the secretary of state during the past fiscal year with prices paid by state institutions for similar supplies and with prices quoted by Arkansas dealers.

Magnolia Company Picnic Thursday

Pines Celebration Is to Be Held From 3 to 7:30 o'clock

P. A. Dulin, Jr., agent for the Magnolia Petroleum company, announced Tuesday that a Centennial picnic would be held at the Pines Thursday afternoon from 3 until 7:30 o'clock. He said the picnic would be attended by sales representatives and guests from 10 southwest Arkansas counties.

The celebration, one of a series of ten being held throughout the state for the employees, dealers and their families is another Magnolia Petroleum company contribution to the Centennial program of the state and in recognition of the splendid safety record made during the first six months of 1936, during which time no vehicle accident or lost-time injury has occurred in the entire Arkansas district.

W. S. Ketch, district manager, has been presented with a handsome bronze plaque, the grand trophy, on behalf of the district having the lowest frequency of disabling injuries and motor vehicle accidents in the marketing division, as well as two attractive banners. The marketing division is composed of nine districts operating in six states.

In accepting the awards, Mr. Ketch said, "The employees of this district are to be congratulated for accomplishing such an enviable record. It is especially noteworthy as the record has been made during a period when the Arkansas District has enjoyed the largest sales in its history and during a time when the traffic has been the heaviest on our highways."

The celebration to be held here will be attended by sales representatives and guests from ten counties. In an interview with Mr. Dulin, he said, "This should be one of the outstanding events in Hempstead county during the year. An elaborate program is being arranged and a large crowd is expected to attend, including officials of the Magnolia Petroleum Company from Little Rock. Mr. Dulin is being assisted with the arrangements by W. J. Lanier, territory manager for this area."

The Magnolia Petroleum Company, a Secony-Vacuum Company, are the manufacturers and marketers of Mobilgas, the fastest selling gasoline in America, and Mobiloil, the world's largest selling motor oil.

A Tense Moment

Jefferson was elected by the votes of 10 states to four for Burr and two blank.

"The manner of the last ballot was arranged but a few minutes before the vote was taken," a Burr supporter said afterwards. "The means existed of electing Burr, but this required his co-operation. By deceiving one man (a great blackhead) and tempting two (not incorruptible) he might have secured a majority of the states."

Victory Parade Burr took his defeat in good grace. Supporters of Jefferson were wild with joy. The New York Daily Advertiser says on February 18:

"After the presidential election last evening a band of Republicans (Jefferson's party), consisting of the most worthless wretches assembled in Washington, marched from one end of the city to the other and attempted to compel the citizens to illuminate their homes. When one Burr adherent refused, the mob left him imprecating vengeance."

The election of 1825 in the house, while not so dramatic nevertheless abounded with color.

In the campaign of 1824 none of the three candidates received a majority of electoral votes. Andrew Jackson captured 99, John Quincy Adams 84, and William H. Crawford 41.

Report Bargaining Attempt A sensational rumor that Adams supporters had approached Henry Clay, then speaker of the house, with an offer of secretary of state if he would support Adams; and that Clay, in turn, had approached the Jackson forces with a tender of his support for a similar reward had rocked the country.

The Washington National Intelligencer reported on the day previous to the election that: "Great numbers of strangers have been attracted to the city. By tomorrow night there will not be a bed to be had in the city for love or money."

The house met on February 9 to elect. The galleries were jammed. General Lafayette occupied a seat of vantage.

Gallery Cleared Only one ballot was necessary to elect Adams. Thirteen states went for him to seven for Jackson and four for Crawford. When it was apparent that Adams was to be the next President, the "effect was electric."

"There was a clapping of hands and audible hisses in the galleries," reports the New York National Advocate. "The galleries were ordered cleared—a deep disappointment to the more than a thousand persons who had, many of them, waited from early morning to witness the spectacle." Jackson, however, made no public show of his disappointment.

In 1836, Richard M. Johnson of Kentucky, failed to receive a majority of electoral votes over three other candidates for the vice presidency and was forced to fight it out in the senate with Francis Granger of New York, the runner-up.

On the first ballot Johnson received 33 votes to Granger's 16 and served as vice president under Martin Van Buren.

Fruit of Cook's Labor Sure to Please If Dessert Is Dutch Plum Cake

There's no excuse at this season for not having dozens of inspirations for delicious fruit desserts. The markets offer a variety of fruits that dazzles the eye and immediately suggests any number of fascinating ideas.

Pennsylvania Dutch plum cake is one of those simple affairs that is quickly mixed and bakes in a very short time.

When you see the result—a golden crust oozing with purple fruit and chopped nuts and cinnamon—you'll take even greater pride in your ability as an artist in the kitchen.

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Orange juice, muffins, scrambled eggs, jam, coffee.

Lunch: Vegetable soup, pineapple and cottage salad, gingerbread, milk, tea.

Dinner: Broiled ham with prunes wrapped in bacon strips and broiled, cauliflower with cheese sauce, tomato, lettuce and cucumber salad with French dressing, Pennsylvania Dutch plum cake, coffee.

One-quarter cup shortening, ¾ cup sugar, 1 cup flour, ¼ cup milk, pinch of salt, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup chopped nuts, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 pounds blue plums, 2 tablespoons butter.

Beat the sugar and shortening to a cream.

Break in the unbeaten eggs, one at a time.

Add the milk, then the flour, sifted

Guernsey School Will Open Friday

Eight Months' Term Will Be Held, Supt. Hugh B. Bristow Announces

Hugh B. Bristow, superintendent of Guernsey public school, announced Tuesday that the school would open Friday of this week for an eight-months' term.

The first day's session, beginning at 9 a. m., will be devoted mostly to classification of students and making assignments for class work.

The Guernsey faculty: Hugh B. Bristow, superintendent, will conduct English classes and physical education; Forney Holt, principal, will have charge of mathematics and science.

Mrs. Tom Sawyer, French and history; Miss Mozelle Lewis, English and social science; Claude Taylor, fifth and sixth grades; Miss Nellie Hays, third and fourth grades; Miss Edna Gordon, second grade; Mrs. Clarence Tyler, first grade.

with the baking powder and salt. Add the vanilla.

Now spread the dough evenly with a spatula or large flat knife on a large, well-greased shallow cookie sheet about 15 by 10 inches in size. Wash the plums and cut them along the side in half, remove the stones, and lay the fruit, cut side up, close together in even rows on the dough. Let them overlap slightly.

Mix ½ cup of chopped nuts with ¼ cup of sugar and ½ teaspoon of cinnamon and strew this mixture over the fruit.

Then sprinkle 2 tablespoons of melted butter on top of the cake and set the pan in a moderate (350 degree) oven to bake 30 minutes. Test it by puncturing the dough, not the fruit.

Cut the cake, when cooled, into 4 inch squares. When the peach season rolls around again, you can use the same recipe, substituting peaches. Even good tart apples may be used as a substitute for plums, but of course plums are the most juicy.

CATCHING COLD?

Smackover to Bring Special Train Friday

Practice, Rain or Shine, for Bobcats

500 Temporary Seats to Be Erected on Visitors' Side of Field

Rain Tuesday slowed down the Hope High School football team for the second straight day as Coach Foy Hammons prepared his men for battle against the Smackover High School team here Friday night.

Hammons held a blackboard session Monday afternoon and then sent his squad onto a rain-spattered field for a brief work-out. The same procedure was expected to be carried out Tuesday.

"Rain or shine practice will be held daily," the coach told his men at the beginning of the season. All but two of the squad reported Monday.

Hammons announced that 500 temporary bleacher seats would be erected on the east side of the field to take care of Smackover fans and the 500 new Buckaroos band coming here on a special train Friday night.

Hammons reported that the Smackover team would be practically the same as the one that gave the Bobcats a stiff battle on the local field last year.

Halfback Prince, the speedster who threatened Hope continually in last year's game, will be missing from the squad. His teammate, King, another potential threat last year, will be in the lineup Friday night. King is reported to be a triple threat player with great speed.

Smackover opened the season two weeks ago against Camden suffering a 25 to 6 defeat.

Jimmy Dykes Gets Honors as Pilot

Cast Off by Connie Mack, He Puts White Sox on Baseball Map

By PAP
Associated Press Writer

The manner in which the New York Yankees romped off with the pennant robbed the American league race of much of its usual interest, but there was plenty of drama which should not be overlooked. The sensational drive of the Chicago White Sox, who were generally picked to finish well down in the second division, is deserving of much praise. The job little Jimmy Dykes has turned in with a bunch of castoffs should net him more than an honorable mention.

Perhaps it was because Jimmy himself was cast off by Connie Mack when he seemed to be nearing the end of his playing career that he was able to work wonders with a group of players who had been shunted about the American league. Whatever the reason he did it... and more power to him.

Three years ago Connie Mack sold Dykes to the White Sox. He figured that Jimmy's days as a big league ball player were numbered. Dykes has slowed up a bit around third base, but he still has one of the best throwing arms in the business. And then, too, how was Connie Mack to know that he was turning over a potentially great manager to the White Sox?

Lucky—And Smart

Jimmy Dykes has gone his spurs as a big league manager. There is no doubt about that. He knows how to play ball, but, even more important, he knows how to handle men and how to make them work for him. It hasn't been all luck with Dykes in the matter of picking up ball players who had, to all appearances, outlived their usefulness, or had failed to measure up to the big league standard. He sized them up on what they were capable of doing, not what their records showed. He has been right in too many instances to call it luck.

Take the case of Vernon Kennedy, the leading Sox hurler and the first pitcher to ring up 20 victories in the American league this season. Connie Mack had Kennedy's contract, but turned him loose after a trial.

Dykes took a flyer on Bill Dietrich, another castoff who failed to hold on with Washington after Mack had passed him up. Rip Radcliff wore the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics for awhile but could not win a place on the A's roster. Mule Haas is another who passed on to Chicago after having served under Connie Mack's banner.

When Washington no longer wanted Luke Sewell he went to the White Sox. Few big-league catchers are as smart behind the plate. The veteran gave Chicago a high grade of backstopping and, while he is no Bill Dickey, Sewell more than makes up for it in the flawless manner in which he handles the pitchers.

Develops Hayes

Washington passed up Jack Hayes a few years back because he could not hit. Yet this same Hayes, under

Princeton Looms for Eastern Title

Fordham, Pittsburgh and Army Have to Be Reckoned With, However

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The "big push" already is on for the East's football powers, led by Princeton's mighty Tigers who will bid for their second successive sectional crown, mythical though it may be.

From Washington, D. C., to Orono, Me.; from Pittsburgh to New York, the pungent odor of liniment already rises from 125-odd training camps, assurance that all is well in the football world. Bruises, aches and sprains are, after all, signs and portents of a new season.

Only the more reckless among gridiron guessers would venture any prediction as to where the 1936 sectional championship will find a resting place but the field of probable contenders is small enough when all is said and done.

Powerful Tiger Machine

Princeton, which ripped through a comparatively light schedule undefeated and untied last year, will roll out another impressive machine paced by the brainy quarterback, Ken Sandor, back, Coach Fritz Crisler may have trouble finding sufficient adequate reserves to carry on this unblemished record.

If the Tifers should falter somewhere along the route, the chief alternate championship possibilities seem to be Fordham, Pittsburgh, Army, Navy, Colgate, and, less probably, Yale, Penn, Temple or Columbia.

Fordham was one of 1935's most underestimated outfits in the country, largely because of an early-season beating from Purdue, but the Rams will have to be reckoned with this year from the word go. Pitt, whose sophomore array did well enough in dropping only one game last season—in Notre Dame—will have the benefit of greater experience as well as new material from a good freshman squad.

Service Eleven's Tough

Navy, whose bad beating from Army came as a shock, will have plenty of man-power and riper experience this fall and should make it interesting for them all. Army is developing another strong team upon the plains with little Charles (Monk) Meyer, the phantom back, again the spearhead of the intelligently-conceived attack taught by Gar Davidson.

Andy Kerr's Red Raider teams, for years, have been tough to beat and the 1936 Colgate array, playing a more representative schedule, should be no exception. Yale again will lack power but the liss showed a year ago they could be formidable opponents despite their lack of poundage. Penn, a major disappointment last year, should be on the up-grade. Temple's problem is to find a replacement for Dave Smukler. Columbia, with a new sophomore sensation in Sid Luckman, may be the chief surprise package of the section.

"Glorifier of Alphabet" Finishes 100th Type

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Frederic W. Goudy, "the glorifier of the alphabet," has finished his one-hundredth type.

It is a new record—and a world record—for the man who, at 40, lost his job, couldn't find another and decided to open a print shop to keep the wolf from the door.

It meant learning a new trade because Frederic W. Goudy in those days didn't know one size of type from another. Today, at 71, he's the world's most famous designer of type, has created more new styles than any other man who ever lived.

YOU'RE READING GOUDY TYPE

Goudy's 100 alphabets outdistance his closest rivals by 65 or 70. The body of this article, for instance, is set with "Deepdene" type, created by Goudy and named for his home at Marlboro, N. Y. The headline above also is set in a Goudy type.

The new type, as yet unnamed, is finished and ready to be christened. It is to be dedicated to his wife who died a year ago.

"I've made more than 100 styles of type," Goudy explains, "but I only count those that have been put to use. Types that are just drawings aren't counted because he has reached the 100 mark."

His first job as a designer was undertaken when he was a boy in Bloomington, Ill., where his father was superintendent of schools.

"The baker got a new wagon," he explains, "and gave me a dollar to paint his name on it."

"FIRING" PROVED LUCKY

That event didn't determine young Frederic Goudy upon a future career, though. He grew up, tried his hand at paperhanging, bookkeeping and half a dozen other occupations, none of them remotely connected with printing.

Later he married and settled in Chicago. It was there, at 40, that he lost his job—"fired," as he tells it, because he was "too good for the world."

He explains dryly:

Losing his job turned out to be a fine thing, though Goudy didn't know it then.

"The printer who knows too much gets into a rut," he explains. "Because I didn't know the rules I tried experiments. I had one customer who let me handle any job as I pleased—so long as it didn't cost much. When I found that the materials I wanted couldn't be purchased, I tried making them myself."

But keeping a print shop didn't prove profitable.

Share-Croppers to Be Given Hearing

W. L. Blackstone, Wynne Tenant, Given Same "Time" as Commission

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—The Arkansas tenancy conference received from numerous sources Tuesday extensive data looking to the solution of the South's share-cropper problem.

J. O. E. Beck, of Hughes, one of eastern Arkansas' largest cotton planters, said he believed it would be necessary to work out a long-term program of education and supervision to solve the problem.

W. L. Blackstone, Wynne tenant-farmer, official representative of the Southern Tenant Farmers union, urged a program to build mutual confidence and respect between classes.

Is Giving Hearing

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—The commission appointed by Governor Futrell to study the farm tenancy situation began its work here Monday. Members of the commission listened attentively to an earnest plea by the governor that the members lay aside any prejudice that they might have and to consider only facts.

As had been expected there was a disturbance by a delegation purporting to represent the Southern Farm Tenants Union, led by C. T. Carpenter, the Memphis lawyer.

W. L. Blackstone, Wynne tenant-farmer, told of alleged deplorable conditions among Arkansas tenant farmers which he said he had witnessed.

J. R. Butler, president of the tenants' union, was invited to appear before an executive session of a special committee appointed to consider a long communication which the organization had sent to the commission.

Later Chairman C. E. Palmer announced that W. L. Blackstone, a sharecropper from Wynne and a member of the tenant union, would act as that organization's representative at the session Tuesday. Blackstone will be given 15 minutes, the same as other members of the commission, to present his case, and will be compelled to confine his remarks to the program of the committee.

Butler virtually had threatened to picket the meeting if he were not allowed to make a speech.

A Carlson, superintendent of the Poinsett Lumber company, described methods of that company's regarding tenancy. Of a clause that obligated the company for home ownership, he said 12 1/2 per cent failed to fully make the grade. The company takes one-fourth of the cotton raised and charges three per cent interest. Of the 75 per cent remaining, the tenant makes a payment on the land, repays the company for the taxes that had to be paid and pays for supplies received. The company insists that every man must have a garden, and 50 per cent of them objected, even though the land was offered free. A clause that obligated the keeping of cows also received a protest. "Because," explained Carlson, "it is much more pleasant and convenient for a man to go fishing when not raising cotton than it is to look after the cows and milk them."

Cardinals Regain Second Position

Field Error by Herman Ruins Warneke's Fine Game for Cubs

CHICAGO.—(AP)—The battling Cardinals from St. Louis bounced back into second place in the National League Monday by licking the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4.

Billy Herman's error, a bad throw on a double play set up in the ninth inning, ended a brilliant stretch of relief pitching by Lonnie Warneke who replaced Tex Carleton after the Cardinals had scored three runs in the third. Leo Durocher opened the final inning with a single and advanced on Don Gutteridge's sacrifice. Virgil Davis was walked intentionally to set the stage for a double play. The Cardinals countered by sending Jim Collins, who won the second game of the series with a home run with the bases loaded, to bat for Pitcher Jim Winford, and Chick Fullis to run for Davis.

Collins tapped to Jurgens who forced Fullis at second, but Herman threw the ball into the dirt past Phil Cavarretta and Durocher scored with the winning run.

The Cubs encouraged the 10,116 spectators with a final desperate effort in their half of the ninth, when Cavarretta doubled and went to third on Herman's sacrifice. Frank Demaree walked, and Ed Heuser, who had replaced Winford, was yanked in favor of Dixie Dean. Cavarretta was trapped between third and the plate on Heck's bouncer to Gutteridge, and Gabby Hartnett ended it with a fly to Terry Moore.

Landon on Stump, Roosevelt Waits

Poor Speaker Talks, While Most Gifted Campaigner Holds Fire

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

It is not unusual for a national campaign to work strange transformations, yet it would be difficult to recall another such out-of-character alignment as that which has governed the roles of the two principal candidates for President during recent weeks.

On the one hand we have had President Roosevelt, born with a love for the hustings and skilled in the school of hard campaigning, letting the summer months drift by without a move toward coming openly to the stump, and speaking only indirectly about the election.

On the opposite side has been Governor Landon qualified for spellbinding neither by native inclination nor experience, a man who won a Presidential nomination largely by sitting tight on his job as governor, swirling from state to state and making rear platform speeches by the score.

Although he now has agreed to a few late September speeches, Mr. Roosevelt will travel "non-politically," says the White House, and an October transcontinental trip which had been projected for him may be curtailed or abandoned. Simultaneously, Mr. Landon greatly enlarges his itinerary, adding a sudden swing into Maine and the east of an already crowded schedule.

F. D. R. Follows Precedent
In the case of Mr. Roosevelt, the reversal of form is especially notable because he is following presidential precedent.

On many past occasions he has prided himself on his disregard of tradition, particularly the tradition of presidential aloofness. Politically, he has looked upon himself as a realist, unfettered by the forms and pretenses which have surrounded so many of his predecessors.

Now he follows the course of custom by speaking almost as though he were unaware that a presidential campaign was in progress.

It is true he has embellished the precedent somewhat, adding a finesse which many other presidents have lacked. He has accomplished an oblique approach to political subjects, stipulating that he is not speaking or acting from political motives in cases where the actual political effect has been clear to everyone.

At the celebrated tax conference he made no public statement at all; others announced no tax increases were impending. He left it to the insurance executives to say from the White House steps that their companies were sounder than ever. Without a mention of politics, his advisers are giving out almost daily hints that the foreign situation makes 1936 a bad time to change horses.

On the Republican side there is no prospect that tactics will change. Mr. Landon now is thoroughly committed to the road; the front porch campaign advocated by some of his friends no longer is a possibility, even if it were deemed advisable. A change at this stage would be interpreted widely as a retreat.

Regarding Mr. Roosevelt, opinions differ. That he will make some purely political speeches, and himself label them as such, seems certain. There are those who think it will not be long until he answers unreservedly the call to which he has responded so often before, and abandons the oblique approach for the direct.

What about the wisdom of campaign swings by presidential nominees? The record supports only in part the old belief that they almost always do more harm than good; and besides every campaign year has its own set of circumstances. The election returns will tell.

F. D's Chauffeur Kept 35 M. P. H.

Charlotte (N. C.) Man Drove for All Presidents Since 1900

By ROBERT J. CRANFORD
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N. C. — (AP) — Osmond Barringer, Charlotte business man, claims to have chauffeured every President who has visited Charlotte except George Washington.

A recent visit of resident Roosevelt led Barringer to relate how he had driven for Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Woodrow Wilson and Herbert Hoover before he piloted the present chief executive through the city streets to the scene of the seven-state rally here.

Keeps to 35 on Highway
The stocky "driver of residents" does not recall exactly how he happened to get the job.

"I was the first automobile dealer in the south," he says, "and had been driving since 1900. I guess they just had confidence in me."

The job does not make him nervous, he says, but "I naturally feel the responsibility." He always drives more carefully, keeping the automobile at a speed of 35 miles an hour between towns and 15 through them.

Must Stay at Wheel

Perhaps the most impressive thing in connection with the job, Barringer says, is the precautions taken for the President's safety. For instance, the secret service orders Barringer to stay at the wheel continuously.

When President Hoover was at Kings Mountain in 1932 something went wrong with the motor and Barringer started to get out of the car to repair it.

"The secret service men wouldn't let me," he says. "They told me to stay in my seat and be ready to move immediately."

One operative rides on each running board.

Never Criticized

Presidents are gracious passengers, Barringer says, and none has ever appeared frightened or criticized his driving.

A "personal touch" gave Woodrow Wilson a favored place in Barringer's memories.

When Wilson came to Charlotte in 1916, he slipped away after a formal program for a drive to Davidson college, 20 miles away, where he once studied as an undergraduate.

Officialdom and the public were not informed of the plans for the visit, and no fanfare heralded the approach of the presidential car. There was no police escort.

Wilson's Held Hands

"Frequent and Mrs. Wilson sat in the back seat," Barringer recalls. "I could see them in the rear view mirror. They held hands and he whistled the 'Memphis Blues' nearly all the way. The President knew my name and talked to me. It was probably the most enjoyable trip of all."

All the Presidents who have visited Charlotte have ridden in open automobiles except Theodore Roosevelt, who used a sedan.

F.I.R. Rode in Rain

The top of President Taft's car is the only one ever raised, and that was made necessary by a torrential rain which fell throughout his visit.

President Roosevelt would not consent to raising the top when rain pelted his party en route here.

"It is much to his sporting credit," says Barringer.

One of the men spoke. "I dug this hole where I was told to and began to put the dirt back like I was supposed to. But all the dirt won't go back in. What'll I do?"

For a long while the supervisor pondered the problem. Then: "I have it. There's only one thing to do. You'll have to dig the hole deeper."
